THE OLD OPERA GLASS.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY MARK MEREDITH.

It lies before me, dinted now With Time; when it was new, Beneath what fair and lovely brow

Was it held up to view? Twas leveled at what mimic scenes That faded long ago: This ancient glass could tell, alas!

A happy tale or so

Of triumphs, bouquets, wild applause And fragile forms, jewels and gauze Where is the debutante so bright

It looked on years gone by? When kidded hands, with wrapt delight, Applanded to the sky! Ah me' a dime museum hears That voice of thrilling power: "Tis billed like this, "Her songs don't miss;

Performance every hour!"
The owner of that voice sings small And triumphs greet her not at all

What sparkling plays—what comedies Of old style air and grace, Brocade and courtly courtesies This looked on—glamor, lace, And witchery that youth recalls When life was fresh as dew! We linger on; but these have gone

Since this old glass was new! 'Twould now reveal but burlesque pranks And dramas fitted out with tanks

These it would greet could it be used As in the olden days; Alas' it now would be refused By those at modern plays. 'Old Fashioned' on its sides is doomed

In letters very plain; he scenes of yore 'twill mark no more; I stay the tear in vain! An unredeemed pledge, there it lies, Marked thirty cents to him that buys!

THE PASTORAL PLAY. MIDSUMMER EPISODE.

BY GRANT ALLEN.

CHAPTER I.

"It's just the very place for a pastoral play—don't you think so, Vandeleur?" Roland Inverarity said, glancing round with some pride at the shady spot he had selected in the midst of the pine wood. Sir George measured it with the eye of the practiced amateur. "Wonderful!" he answered; "wonderful! Nature invented it with special reference to the needs and requirements of an open air theatre. I never saw anything like it before. Why, there are entrances and exits ready made for us; and who ever dreamed of such a splendid stage for pastoral acting ?''. He was quite right in his eulogy. Roland's choice was as excellent as nature's provision. The spot had been expressly created beforehand for the pur-poses of the actor. In the centre lay an amphitheatre of short purple heather, close cropped some years before, and not tall enough now to impede or hide the feet of the performers, yet making a rich carpet of flowers and foliage on which to stand, and a dry and easy bed on whose lap to fling oneself.

"The precise place for the plenic scene!" Sir George exclaimed, gazing down on it.

"This will be the actors' end," Roland went on, pointing out a broad level of still shorter heath under the shade of the pine trees. "We get a gleam or two of sunshine through the boughs just here— enough to light up the dresses, without exposing us to the giare and heat of the day. It's deliciously cool, too, isn't it?'! "Oh, charming!" Sir George answered, pacing it up and down to take its measure. "And then, what a glorious seat over there for the audience!

"Besides, there are these lovely clumps of holly and whitebeam trees on either side," Roland webt on, turning as he spoke to some groups of irregular bushes overgrown with dog roses. "The very thing, don't you see, for our characters to stand be hind till they have to enter. It's a natural green room. You throw a rug on the ground here, and there Rosalind can sit till she gets her cue-new mistress' brother.'

Sir George caught his breath. "Ah, Rosalind " he cried, rather lower, with a lingering tremor on the name that was more than theatrical. "That's the question-Rosalind! Will she come, I wonder You see, we've given her such very short notice; and she's so likely to be engaged, such a favorite as she is! I'm afraid we must play it with Miss Willett left out—which is Hamlet, of course, without the Prince of Denmark

'She was resting last week, though," Roland puin. He said it with an earnestness which showed he was quite as anxious Miss Willett should come as Vandeleur himself could be

'She was resting last week," Sir George peated. "Yes, I know she was resting. But is it likely any manager would let her rest long? She's so awfully sought after!"

o awfully sought after."
"We will hope," Roland answered. And he said it in a voice which clearly showed his hope was something deeper by farthan a stage manager's aspiration. As he spoke a man in livery came down the shady alley of spruce firs from the great house with a silver salver in his band. "A telegram for you, sir," he said, offering it.

Roland tore the flimsy envelope open with eager tingers, and read the contents hastily. As he did so a flush of pleasure overspread for a moment his handsome features.

From her?" his companion asked, though the inquiry seemed needless.

"From her!" Roland answered, inspecting it with "And this is what she says; 'De lighted to assist you.'"

"Any answer, sir?" the servant asked.
Reland took the form which the man had brought down with a trained servant's thoughtfuiness, and friend's fancy.

Roland assented at once. "Oh, of course!" he rescribbed hur, sdy the reply? "Ten thousand thanks! You will Jop here, of course. Invitation from my mother will I slow immediately." his friend inquiringly.

The two men looked at each other as the servant "Do you remember when we first met her." Vandisappeared, and drew two long, simultaneous breaths. Well, this is good." Roland remarked at last, with a man's clumsy dissembling.

"Splendid!" Vandeleur answered. "Success is now a foregone conclusion."

They turned towards the house—a big, new, red brick Elizabethan mansion. It stood near the summit of one of the highest and most beautiful hills in The view in front stretched away for miles over moors and heather, with white chalk downs closing the horizon in the distance. Behind a grove of larch and pine in the opposite direction lay the little oval glade which Roland had selected deleur mused on, "in her brother's rooms at Oriel? He wasn't a parson yet then, and she wasn't an actress. She was only the most beautiful and cleverest girl that ever went to Girton. But, by George, Inverarity, how she did flash across us!"

"She did." Roland answered. "She's a wonderful creature. So deep; so varied; so profound; so human. When one sees her first one thinks only of the exquisite profile, the speaking eyes, the rich red lips, the lithe and graceful figure. But after one gets to know her one thinks rather - quickly.

Doris' face fell a little, and she gazed hard at Sir George Such open admiration of the unknown lady did not seem to impress her.

Mrs. Inverarity held the note in her hand with a dubious countenance. "The question is," she said. will Miss-er-Miss Willett's parents like her to come and stay here on my mere invitation;"

"Why, of course," Roland answered, with an ill suppressed smile. "Surely, Mums, your protection s good enough for anybody."

Mrs. Inverarity smoothed out her black silk dress

(In the hottest Summer weather she always were black silk; that was a point of honor.) "Uthey ulckly.

"Just what I was going to say," Roland answered.

"I mean," Vandeleur explained again, "in a community where girls are allowed to bicycle, the in-stitution of chaperonage must necessarily sink into innocuous desuctude."

Mrs. Inverarity did not feel equal to tackling "In-nocuous desuetude;" so she merely smiled a bland and maternal smile, and handed Roland the note, which he was itching to post without further par-ley. Once posted, he knew there could be no going back; Rosalind Willett would be secured as a guest in the house, and for the part of Rosalind. In no other house in England, probably, would the name of Rosaliud Willett have failed to call up an answering picture of a great and powerful actress an actress who combined to a rare degree intellectual grasp with personal beauty and passion ate wealth of emotion. But so remote did Mrs. Inversity live from the theatrical world that even Dorís had never so much as heard of the famous tragedienne. The only Willett she knew by name was the excellent Canon who was so deeply interested in the Uganda Missions; and that Rosalind was his daughter and a distinguished actress she did not know and could with difficulty have realized.

CHAPTER II.

Roland despatched the letter to the post with all possible expedition. Then he went off with Vandeleur through the sighing pine wood into the open amphitheatre behind the grove, to discuss further questions of stage management and accessories. Breaths of heather honey and murmurs of trees made the moorland sweet. It was all pure idyil.

That afternoon, as chance would have it. Mrs. Edward Holmes, in her brand new carriage, called casually at Heathershott. Mrs. Holmes was the wife of the great African diamond broker who had lately bought that fine old place, Wingfield Court, from the last of the Wingfields; and, as becomes a lady lately added to society, she knew everybody and everything from London to Kamschatka you're going to get up a pastoral play, I hear, Miss Inverarity?" she began to Doris. "Now, how nice "Now, how nice and how clever of you to have thought of such a thing here—the very place adapted for it! So dry, you know; so well shaded; such exquisite back-grounds! 'As You Like It,' of course! Ah, yes, I thought so; It's always 'As You Like It' in the pas-toral play season. I wonder, though, with a clever Oxford brother like yours, and that charming Sh George Vandeleur, you didn't get them to write a pastoral play of their own—a little native idyll. So much more original, you see—and so much more distinguished! But, then, Shakespeare, of course— Shakespeare really takes a lot of beating! Wonderful genius, Shakespeare, wasn't he? So universal! so all sided!" (Mrs. Holmes knew the ordinary platitude to say about everything, tempered ies by weird outbursts of faluous originality. "His plays hold the stage still after three hundred years! Remarkable, isn't it? Well, and what cast have you got? You're to be Cella, I'm sure? Yes. of course; I thought so. Quite right, too just the face and figure. So womanly, Cella; such a perfect lady! And your Resalind? Sweet pert! Who's ast for Rosalind?"
. "A friend of Roland's," Mrs. Inversity put in.

A Miss-what did he call her, Doris?"

Miss Rosalind Willett," Doris answered, withut a trace of interest.

Mrs. Holmes gave a start. "Oh, Miss Rosalind Willett!" she exclaimed. "You are doing the thing in style! But you always do, dear Mrs. Inverarity. in style! I said to Edward this morning, 'Edward, you may be sure, if Mrs. Inverarity gets up a pastoral play, no pastoral play to equal hers will have been seen in the County of Surrey,' though at Guildford, you know, last year—but then, Miss Rosalind Willett! Well, you are lucky to get her! Such a star as Miss Willett! Though I should have thought Miss Willett would hardly care —. But it's not money, you say; she's a friend of your brother's. And Sir George Vandeleur here, too! All those things make a difference. Still, Miss Willett, you know—so run after!'

"Is she a a well known performer, then?" Mrs. Inveracity inquired, hardly liking Roland to be mixed up with a young lady who had a name as a onstant actress.
"A well known performer, my dear Mrs. Inver-arity." Mrs. Holmes exclaimed, surprised. "Why, surely you must know that last season at the Shakespeare—but I forgot; you don't ever go to theatres, do you? You don't care for acting?

"Mamma does not approve of them," Dori swered pointedly. She would have liked to indulge that wicked taste herself; but, if debarred for onscience sake, she desired at least to get the credit of self denial.

Mrs. Inverarity leaned back in her chair and regarded her visitor with a look of alarm. nean to say," she gasped out, "that this Miss Rosaand Willett, whom I have asked to my house to stop is—a—a professional actress?"

Mrs. Inversity rose from her chair and strolled utamong the rhododendrons. She couldn't ston n the room. She felt fresh air was absolutely necessary to her. "Come this way, Mrs. Holmes, sne said, "and see my carnations." (fore a stranger was simply impossible.

But when Mrs. Holmes was fairly gone the outraged mother turned to Doris. "I shall receive this person in my house," she said slowly, with great emphasis on the person, "and treat her with courtesy. I shall take no notice at all of her position and calling. And I shall not say a word to Roland on the subject. Nor to Sir George, either. I shall pretend to ignore the deception they have practiced upon me. I think that course more dignified."

"Perhaps Sir George didn't know," Dorls an-wered wistfully, pulling a white pink and fastening it in her bosom. "Or perhaps he didn't under stand your objection to theatres

'Perhaps not," Mrs. Inversity answered in a very dry voice. "I will give Sir George the benefit of the doubt. But Roland is different. Roland has most grossly and unjustifiably deceived me."

CHAPTER III.

Mrs. Inversity did treat dosalind Willett, as she said, with courtesy. Indeed it would have been as the site for their proposed open air theatre.

The son of the house turned abruptly to his friend.
"Look here, Van," he said, "don't mention to my mother—just at present, I mean—that Miss Willett is a professional actress. I'd rather she didn't known-until she has seen her."

Prejudice?" Vandeleur inquired, lighting a eigarette.

"Prejudice, my dear boy? That's hardly the name for it. Remember, my mother has passed most of her life in a Colony; and Colonial morality is provincial morality at its very deepest, plus the Nonconformist conscience, raised to tenth power and enclosed in a shell like a tortoise's or an arma-

"Objects to the theatre, perhaps?" Sir George suggested tentatively.

Objects to it! Worse than that; never went inside one. The Mums believes that theatres as a class are an invention of the Evil One. She saw once painted up on a wall in Melbourne, 'This Way to the Pit'; and she speaks of the theatre as 'The Way to the Pit' ever since with great persistence. She doesn't haf like my getting up this pastoral play here at He thershott at all; but the two refeatures in her eyes are that it's not in a house, and that it's to be acted by amateurs. she knew that Rosalind-I mean, Miss Willett-was a professional actress I really don't believe she'd invite her to the house. So I particularly wish you not to mention the fact—till after she's seen her."

"When once she's seen her —," Vandeleur ob-served, and left the rest of the sentence to his plied. "When once she's seen her! That's quite another matter. There can be no two opinions about Miss Willett, once seen." And he glanced at at his friend. If any third person had been by at that moment he would have stood in need of no interpreter to tell him that both young men were pro oundly in love with Rosalind Willett

The drawing room at Heathershott gave on to the lawn, with its beds of rhododendrons. Roland passed in through the open window at once, and rushed up to his mother. "Oh, Mums," be cried bursting upon her, "I want you to sit down and write an invitation at once to one of the ladies who have kindly consented to help us with our play. She's a friend of Vandeleur's and minemost charming girl:-I'm sure you'll like her Write, 'Dear Miss Willett—My son tells me you have been so very good —_''' And he dictated an

Mrs. Inverarity sat down at her little desk in the corner of the room, and dutifully did as her son en oined upon her. She was an obedient mother, and, except when her Colonial morality was aroused, in-variably acted as Roland and Doris bid her. "Where shall I direct it?" she asked, looking up as she olded the sheet of paper. Roland gave her the address: "27 St. Edward's Street, Park Lane, W. She'll get it this evening."

Mrs. Inverarity leaned back in her chair as si gummed it, and surveyed her son dublously your what-you-may-call-it is complete?" she in-quired with a hesitating accent. "Our cast is complete," Roland answered. "Sir

George is Jacques, I am Orlando, Doris is Celia, and —Miss Willett is Rosalind." "Her own name is Rosalind, I see," Doris put in

Mrs. Inverarity looked up at him with a puzzled expression of face. "Now, that, Sir George," she ventured to say, "is surely an exaggeration! Bi-cycles, I admit, are most dangerous instruments r should I rather say 'vehicles' ?-perhaps 'imple ments' is more suitable; most dangerous implements, no doubt; but I should think it more prob able they would kill the young women who are foolish enough to ride them than the mothers and friends who accompany the riders. Unless, indeed, you mean to suggest that the chaperons as wel have to mount and follow them, in which case I can of course, understand that, chaperons being, as a rule, somewhat older and possibly stouter, they might be more liable to accidents than the girls whom they accompany. These things are best learned, I suppose, if at all, when one is young and plastic. Not that I would recommend them to ladies at any age. Though, if you intend to suggest that bicycles knock down large numbers of middle aged women in the street, and so tend to annihilate the whole class of mothers and aunts, I really think Vandeleur could no longer repress his rising smile. "I meant," he interposed, "that the bicycle has killed the chaperon morally, not physically got rid of her as an institution—superannuated and superseded her. Put a girl on wheels, and you ave given her freedom; she goes where she will have given her freedom, she good, and snaps her fingers at chaperons."

"How very unladylike" Mrs. Inverarity ex

"How evry unladylike!" Mrs. Inverarity ex-claimed. "No well behaved person, when I was a girl, would ever have dreamt of snapping her fingers." The good lady had been born with an incapacity for taking everything literally.

difficult for anybody to treat Rosalind Willett otherwise. Even Mrs. Inversarity, prejudiced as she was, had to admit to herself at once that that queenly woman looked like a lady, shoke like a lady and like a lady and behaved like a lady. "It's the wonderful adaptability of these actresses," she said to Forts, the first night of Rosalind's stay in her house. "They can imitate so perfectly: "It never even occurred as a possibility to her good old fashioned Colonial mind that Rosalind Willett could be the daughter of a distinguished clergyman, educated

The first morning after her arrival Rosalind strolled out with Roband into the grounds of Heathershot to inspect the spot he had chosen for their performance. Vandeleur, Indeed, had tied to carry off Rosalind before Roband could secure her; but Roband fancted he saw a faint desire on the great writists part to go out alone with him. Was that politeness, he wondered, to the son of the house, or was it deference to the prior claims of the stage manager, or—did site really like him better? His heart beat hard as he asked himself that question. He showed her the chosen spot, among the odorous pine woods. She was delighted with everything.

"I shall love it "she cried, frankly. "To act like this—here, on these open, free hills, with friends cone likes, and to a friendly audience—how much more delightful than the stuffy atmosphere and thering footlights and casual crowd in a London theatre!"

"But—you gave up an important money engagement to come?"

She broke the stem of heather in two impatiently. "Money" she cried, in a petulant tone. "Money! A money engagement! And nom, Mr. Inverarity, of all men, to say so! We are artists, not money grubbers; we here our art! Now, aren! you ashamed of yourself? Don't you owe me an apology?"

She looked at him with her deepeyes just dimmed with moisture. Her exquisite face was fushed with genuine shame and distress and humiliation. Roland wondered to himself how he could ever lave said it. "But you were so kind," he cried, "so good! One couldn't help thinking of the—the loss we had entaited upon you. Her eyes pierced him again. "But it was for old friends," she answered. "For old friends of my own and my brother Charlie's! Besides, I like the idea. "Yes."

She was going to say: "You will kill me." but prudence prevaited; she checked herself in time, and added instead: "You will hurt and grieve me."
The young man leaned forward with a very earnest face. "I could do nothing to hurt or grieve you, Miss Willett," he exclaimed, his heart beating high. "I don't think you know how much I—admire and respect you."

CHAPTER IV.

That afternoon they had a first rehearsal. It was not in costume, and in the cool of the trees it was most pastoral and delightful. Breaths of moorfand air brought the scent of the gorse to them. Once in the course of the play, however, Roland was conscious of a sudden thrill of unexpected pleasure. It was when Rosalind turned to him and pronounced with deep feeling the words put Into her mouth; "I'll have no husband if you be not he." That speech, and the way she said it, brought tae blood to his cheek. He somehow fancied she said the words to himself, not to the stage orbands. But then—she was such a perfect and wonderful actress! She could throw herself into her part till she became her character. Had he not heard her so make love to actors upon the stage. Not quite so perfectly, perhaps! Or was trat pure fancy.

had heard ner's of make love to detors upon the stage? Not quite so perfectly, perhaps? Or was har pure fancy?

Yet, when she had said those words earlier, "Oh, coz, coz, coz, my pretty little coz, that you didst know how many lathom deep! am in love." he thought he had never before heard her deliver the passage with such a ring of truth as she had in her effectly voice that moment.

The house was full of guests—both those who were to take part in the play and others. After dinner that evening several of them strolled out by twos and threes into the grounds—for the air was balmy—and sat down in the twilight on the heathery hitside. Rosalind, Dorfs, Vandie cur, Roland, and a few others of the party thing themselves on a soft bed of green and invariant bracken near the edge of the slope. The sunset still crimsoned the western sky; a nightpar trilled out his passionate lieve song from a neighboring pine tree. Rosalind leaned forward and listened to his earnest crooning with that keen air which distinguished her eager face and supple figure. "It is a wonderful voice, is it not, Orlando." she said, turning to Roland, and calling him by the name he bote in the play. "So deep and eestatic."

"It is, Rosalind." he answered, venturing to adopt the same player's fancy.

The great actress drew back. "You must not call me Bosalind," she said, with an inner fremor. "Birt you called me Orlando." the young man pleaded.
"Yes; but your name is not really Orlando;

"But Rosalind and Rosalind are one and the same," the beautiful woman reforted.

"Are they, I wonder," he cried, and half muttered to himself the breky line, "I'll have no husband if you be not he."

The actress blushed and stammered, "I mean they are so much alike that they must be carefully discriminated," she went on deep crimson, "I hope so," Vandeleur interposed with an earnestness that did not escape borr's notice.

Ten minutes later they walked home together. Restnous odors of pine perfumed the path. A mightligade sang in the valley, Roland toltered behind with Rosalind, "Did I ver you," he asked, "Just now, by calling your Rosalind?"

She turned to him for a second with one dash of her 1/2 eves. "Quidd you vex mes" she said, "I wonder."

His heart gave a leap. "Thank you, Rosalind," he replied. "And this time it is to you I say it—not to the girl in the play."

She drew a long breath. "You may when we are alo e," she answered, and then half broke away from him. Her bosom heaved. He knete she loved him.

This will be built this Summer, but will not be opened unti next season. Arrangements for the new theatrical venture are on an elaborate scale and include an orchestra of twenty-four pieces. A feature of the place will be the concert programmes that will be given from 10.30 until midnight. The managemen f these concerts will be in the competent hands of director of the opera company, which will be c high class. W. A. Edwards will be the manager an dicate behind the enterprise is Newton Morganroth and the stage management will be in the hands o Henry Laurent, for many years identified with Col McCaull. There was plenty of commotion in town last week among the coryphees, on account of the tailure of the Electrical Park spectacle to pay the salaries promised to members of a big spectacular organization, which began doing what seemed to be a profitable business the week before. After three or four big nights at the park the place took fire and then the manager announced that he could no pay salaries already earned. The chorus girls made so lively for the manager last Tuesday evening that a riot call was sent in for the police. Since that time the manager, Mr. Biedecker, has raised enough money to pay a part of the salaries, and thirly-four per cent, of the amount outstanding i promised for Monday. There is a rumor to the effect that a Milwaukee brewing company will guarantee that accounts against the Electrical Park will be paid, and that business will be resumed on a solid basis. The popularity of vandeville is illustrated by the fact that in two of Chicago's chief suburbs, Evanston and Oak Park, there will be entertainments of that pature this week. Both of these are for the benefit of popular charities, and for the Evanston perform-ance, particularly, there has been an exceptionally attractive programme arranged. Business at all of the houses is excellent, and the outlook is better than it has been for weeks. The Great Northern Roof Garden is having some difficulty in adjusting its arrangements so as to keep pace with the mid-summer night's vagaries of Chicago temperature. It is an open air resort, and there were two or three nights last week when it would have been necessary to have offered an ulster or a sealskin cloak with each admission to have tempted people up to the place. When the temperature is high it is an attractive resort, but when the weather ma gets mixed in his dates this beautiful resort stands unrivaled as a pneumonia producer.

HOOLEY'S THEATRE.—The end of "The Gay Paris ians" run will come with another week after this and Aug. 8 will witness the farewell performance Of late it has not been drawing large houses, al late it has not been drawing a late as a single hough the business is far from bad. It looks as it if the people who are patrons of the theatre a guilar prices had seen the performance sufficient y, and that the end of this run, which has been re-regular prices had seen the performance sanicately, and that the end of this run, which has been remarkably successful, has been set none too soon by making it aug. 8. Hooley's will remain closed for a month at the end of this engagement, and during that time it will be thoroughly renovated and made ready for the opening of season, Sept. 7.

HOPKINS' THEATRE.—During the recent National Convention the Hopkins made a new record for itself in the way of receipts. Last week the receipts fell only $2.8 short of what they were during the week of the convention, and the explanation for this big business during what is popularly supposed to be an of season, is found in the interest that has been excited by the vitascope. For this week the stock company will produce "Lights and Shadows," and the vaudeville bill will include the Nichols Sisters, Montgomery and Stone, Columbia Trio, Marie Wilber, Jas. McDurf, O'Berti, and Fiaberty and Connors. The vitascope will remain for this week, and probably for sometime to come, asit has proven to be one of the best drawing attractions of the year.

MASONIC TEMPLE ROOF GARDEN,—There are few oven to be one of the best drawing attractions of the year. Masonic Temple Roof Garden.—There are few MASONIC TEMPLE ROOF GARDEN.—There are few vandeville programmes that can equal the one that Manager Fair gave to his patrons last week, and the bill for this week promises quite as well. The little Italian girl. Glacinta bella Rocca, has won the learts of all classes with her wonderful playing of the violin, and has been re-engaged. Others on the programme include Katie Rooney, Joseph Doner, the Three Nomados, Elinore Sisters, Eddle Giguere and Blanche Boyer, Katherine Gyles, Ernest Sevedius, Master Alexander, boy soprano; Dixon, Bowers and Dixon.

Citicago Opera House.—Business at the Chicago continues to be very good. There is the smallest amount of "paper" in the house that the place has ever known, and the largest crowds since they packed the place nightly during the World's Fair.
For this week the programme includes the Meers

NOTES.—Messis. Miner and Brooks have bought the shares in the American Theatrical Syndicate that were owned by the McVicker estate, and the firm of Miner & Brooks now own all of the property of the late company.... Hayes and Post left Sunday for an engagement at the Lagoon, Chicinnati......The Three Albions were to have appeared here this week, but their engagement is postponed for a week owing to an accident by which one of the brothers (William) in jured his shoulder... Ed. Caron, with the Nightons, received a telegram announcing the death of his child last week.... The Angela Sisters have scored an unqualified success in their recent appearance at the roof garden. Their act is one of the cleverest ever seen here, and absolutely dainty and refined. They will doubless make a big hit at the society vaudeville affair in Evanston this week..... De Bessell will also appear in the "all star" vandeville bill at Evanston this week..... Ada Sterling, with Hanlons' "Superba" hast season, is summering in Chicago.... Eilly Robinson, of the Orpheus, will have stage direction of the all presco vandeville bill at Evanston this week..... Ton Prior starts his first week at the Ferris wheel with a good vandeville programme, including belhauer, Flors Evans, Horwitz and Bowers, Australian Lady quartet, Viginia University Jubliee Singers, the Histats, Minnie Church, Evans and Laugford, the Danny Mann Trio.

Atlanta .- At the Grand, after a most success on, the Atlantians closed their engagement The company has reorganized and will be July 18. The company has reorganized and will be known as the "Aragon Opera Co." Miss Walker, who has, for the present at least, retred from the stage, has been replaced by Josephine Stanton as prima donna. Frank David succeeds George Bontrace. Della Stacev has also been added as son-brette. Little Gertic Carlisle has been retained. The Aragon Opera Co. will remain in the city for two weeks, then it will begin a tour of the South. Two operas will be presented week of 20, "Glrodle Girolla" and "Said Pasha." The Newcomb Sisters, song and dance performers, will introduce a novelty. The fiftieth performance of Summer opera will be given 21, and will be celebrated by the distribution of handsome souvenirs. On 24 Manager Rosenthal will be given a benefit, and an especially attractive programme will be given. A sacred concert was given 19, to a large audience. The testimonial performance to Mr. Boniface, 18, drew well, notwithstanding the stormy weather.

Macon.—The Aragon Opera Co., now playing a Summer engagement at Atlanta, will open for a week at the Academy of Music, commencing Aug. 17. New people this week at Putzell's Vandeville are: Tom Butler and Edward Dupont. Those retained are: Alfa Braunneck, Elsie Young, Jeane Earle, Madge Olinger and that veteran, Dan Hart. Billy Scott has closed a successful engagement and will leave for St. Louis, Mo., this week. Misses Earle and Ollinger have become favorites with their up to date songs.

Cincinnati.-Several hints of the coming sea son have been tossed out upon the typographical current, but theatrical affairs are still dull. Sam Brady's coming is awaited with interest, for the management of Robinson's Opera House is a matter awaiting his settlement. The Star has thrown out the scintillation that the season will be opened with "one of the greatest novelties" ever seen in Cincinnati. When the Cincinnati Club goes away in August "The Little Reds" will move down to the

ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.—The Sioux are still encamped and Sie Hasson Ben Ali's Moorish acrobats are also making an extended stay of it. Cards July 19 were Lillian Cody, Victor Cody, Dr. Chamberlin Birdie Evans and Thomas Waldron. The usual semi-weekly Summer nights' musical fetes are CONEY ISLAND .- At the little theatre on Lake Co mo's banks the Riebachers, Josef and Cecil, Tyroean warblers, William and Grace Mills, and Frank Hammond provided the entertainment.

Burt, Lew Randeil, Kittle Pink, Harry Pink and Billy Jaxon.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling.—The Summer season has so falbeen devoid of the least item of interest in or about the local theatres, and at the two parks nothing of an extraordinary character has been given. Both houses are undergoing extensive repairs, and many needed improvements are being made.

WHEELING PARK.—The Summer opera season was opened July 13 with a company formed in Nev York for this engagement, which will last for one more week. The company is under the manage ment of Al. Levi and Al. Rheirstrom, of the Frob man forces, and includes Villa Knox, Minnie De Rue, Bessie Ashton, Francis Gaillard, Phil Branson Herman Waldo, John G. Bell, Harry Bates and Rue, Bessie Ashton, Francis Gaillard, Phil Branson, Herman Waldo, John G. Bell, Harry Bates and others. The business so far has only been fair, owing to the state of the weather. The company will present during their stay here "Pinafore," "The Bohemian Gir," "The Chimes of Normandy," "The Mikado," "La Mascotte" and other popular operas. The opening opera was "The Chimes of Normandy," which was well rendered.

THE IMPROVEMENTS at the Opera House are extensive, and will when finished add greatly to the accommodation of the visiting attractions. The grooves, which were formerly stationary and only eighteen feet, have been raised so as to take in twenty-three foot "stur" nicely. The stage has also been enlarged and new scenery added.

At the Grand the stage has received much attention also. The grooves here have, too, been raised, and many other improvements made. The entrance and auditorium will look respiendent in white and gold. Numerous additional incandescent lights have been put in, and Manager Feinler will spare no expense in fitting his theatre out in fine style. The season here will open Aug. 20 with Barlow Bros. Minstreis.

Manager Chas. A. Frinkler stole a march on his many friends here by going to Pittsburg, Pa., and getting married, 14. His bride is a well known Wheeling lady named Mamie Adolph. Mr. and Mrs. Feinler left Pittsburg after their marriage for New York, where they will spend several weeks.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Washington .- "The Snowball," preceded by Willard Holcomb's little curtain raiser, "Her Last Rehearsal," was the bill last week at Rapley's National Theatre, and the Summer Stock Co. never did better work. The audiences were exceptionally arge and enthusiastic. The weather was unusually fine, and everything was favorable to the comfor and amusement of our playgoers. This week another of this company's successes is on—'My Awful Dad.' The comedy is being preceded by a new curtain raiser by Paul Wilstach, entitled Bluff," cast as follows: Herbert Garrison, Charles Mackey: Theodore Swift, John Findlay: Mr. Thrush ag; Thomas, Mr. Hutson, and Grace Edge wood, Mary Sanders. The present is the sixth week of the present comedy season at Rapley's National, and next Saturday night, July 25, will mark the fiftieth performance of "My Awful Dad." on which occasion sterling silver souvenirs will be distributed to every lady occupying a reserved seat. Next week, 27-Aug. 1, "School."

KERNAN'S LYCEUM THEATRE .- "All Over It," a KERNAN'S LYCKUM THEATRE.—"All Over It," a burlesque on "Olivette," was the bill for the closing week of this house. Like its predecessors it was a success, and made a first rate finish. The theatre will remain closed about four weeks, during which time the usual renovation will take place and the attaches will enjoy a much needed rest.

Notes.-The building heretofore known as Met zerott Music Hall is now being remodeled into a regular theatre, to be known when finished as the Columbia Opera House. The entire inside of the spacious building has been removed, leaving only the four walls and roof intact. The lower or or-chestra form will be compared to the control of t chestra floor will be on a level with F Street, fron which a spacious entrance is being made. The new theatre will be opened in October next, and will be conducted by the Nixon & Zimmerman syndicate, who also will control the Lafayette Square Opera House. The opening attraction wil e the new Irish opera, "Bryan Boru." Messr Frank Metzerott and Joseph Luckett will be the local managers.... The Bijou Theatre, formerly Harris', which was closed early last season, ha been leased, and is now being nicely fitted up as a popular price house, and will open some time ext month, under the management of Robert Whitseli. The Grand Opera House will open Aug 15 under the management of Kernan & Rife and will be run in connection with the Hol laday Street Theatre, Baltimore......T. Danie Frawley made a flying visit to his home in this city last week. He has several plays which will have early productions at his San Francisco house. Among them is a naval play by Lieut. Allen dice, of the U. S. Steamship Bennington, the scene of which are laid at Fortress Monroe and Washing ton. He also has a play by Judge Bruin, of San Francisco, with scenes laid at Sitka, Alaska, at the time when Alaska was a Russian province. His most important purchase is a dramatization of Ellis Ryan's "Toid in the Hills.".....John Findlay, the favorite "old man" of the National Summer Stock Co., has signed with Daniel Frohman for next season, to play the role of Col. Sapt in "The Prisone of Zenda."......James Lackey, a brother of Wilton Lackaye, both Washingtonians, who for the past two seasons has been the Martin Berry in one of the "Shore Acres" Cos., is visiting at the home of his people for a few days. He will appear in a promi nent role in a new play to be shortly produced in New York, entitled "The Polar Star," after which he will be in the support of his brother when his new hyponotic play is produced.....A compil-mentary benefit tendered to Annie Lewis by the National Theatre Stock Co., through the courtesy of Managers W. H. Rapley and Bert Riddle, was re-luctantly declined by Miss Lewis, for the reason that the present state of her health would not per-mit her to appear in person and take part in enter-taining her host of Washington friends. Should her health improve, as she confidently hopes it will. she will have a benefit in the Fall, and before the opening of the regular season. Preparations for an entertainment of a noval character are al already being made, and both Miss Lewis and the public will be benefited by the delay. The kind ffer of Messrs. Rapley & Riddle to give her a complimentary benefit entitles those gentlemen to the warmest commendation for their generosity.....

The plans for a new million dollar hotel on the site of the old Willard has a theatre included, but with a city so well supplied with theatres as this iswith the National, Lafayette Square, Columbia, Grand Opera House, Academy of Music, Bijou and the Lyceum-it is not easy to see where the neces-

NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week's Events .- Still another dull week has been added to the dreary list. It is useless to attempt to conceal the fact that theatrical business in this city is at the present time at a very low ebb Of course no great volume of business is antici pated at this season, and managers of dramatic houses as a rule are content to close their doors during the Summer months. The number of open houses is at present much smaller than is usual at this time of the year. Two houses only are open on Broadway, and at the close of the current week one of these will be erased from the list. Variety six roof gardens. One house is devoted to-German opera, and an old fashioned one ring circus on the East side completes the list of anusement resorts now open. A few of these, having attractions of more than ordinary interest, are reaping adequate returns, while the others are sharing business that is absolutely bad, and it is doubtful if the sum total of receipts would show a paying average. The causes of this duiness are hard times, the bicycle craze and lack of novelty. In the variety business the Inevitable result of great prosperity and strong competition has been reached. The public has greedily devoured every-thing in sight, and like Oliver Twist asked for more. so that in the future extraordinarily strong head lines will be essential to success. TONY PASTOR'S THEATRE. - While the weather may have some effect on the size of the audience gathered here from noon to nearly midnight, the spirit of enterprise which has carried Managet Pastor to his enviable station in the vaudvilles will not permit the entertainment on the stage to waver to a lower standard than that to which the patrons of this popular house are accustomed. The show, always wholesome and entertaining, is this week especially attractive to devotees of high class variety, and, as the price is a pittance, it is less a cause for wonderment that the house is always so well filled in sultry days, or during the regular season, than is the standard of excellence maintained at the prices asked. Manager Pastor's penchant for expoiting new candidates for favor has by no means deserted him, as the programme offered for the week of July 20 will show, several acts comparatively new to local vaudevilles being prominent in the list. Lydia Barry's third week bids fair to add further to the flattering epinions her auditors have formed, her ability and excellent methods being decidedly refreshing, and, with the added gift of a melodious voice, give good reason for her recurring successes. In one song alone, "My Mother Was a Lady," her talent shines out, smitiently to stamp her ability beyond doubting. Mand Nagent, in songs of a trivial strain, made a decided hil. She is another of the coming favorites—if, in fact, she has not already arrived—and deserves full credit, for the possession of talent which she is keen enough to fully utilize. Franke Haines, who may be classed a character serio comic, is a third member of the current bill who won immediate favor, and, having the advantage of being among friends gained through previous agreeable visits, made rapid progress with her songs, and finished with a verdet of strong approval. Into Fox. whose cleverness as a magican is well established; Felix and Cain, men of genutnely comic talent, and Sheffer and Blakely, whose act demands no comment because of its well known merit, all came in for rousing welcomes. Hattle Stewart and Tommic Gillen, who were saved to close the show, followed nearly every boxing act in the business upon this stage, but gave an excelient account of themselves withal, and reorded a complete success. Evans and Vidocq, fountains of many a capital joke; the Metropolitan Three, comprising Geo. Preston, Win. A. Gaipin and Adele Reno, entertainers of much ability, and the Silvers, with songs illustrated, were applanded vocilerously; others who lent their efforts to make the bill palatable and refreshing being the Nichols Sister well filled in sultry days, or during the regular sea son, than is the standard of excellence maintained PROCTOR'S PLEASURE PALACE. Manager Proctor continues to give his patrons a pleasing entertain-ment, along with the comfort afforded by this commodious resort. John W. Ransone began July 20 his second week in his impersonation of Mark Hanna. There is no doubt that his representation of the "Ruler of Ohio," as he appears on the programme, will be as popular as Mr. Ransone's well gramme, will be as popular as Mr. Jansone's well known characterization of she "Ruler of New York." The act is made up of political hits, and is given in the usual happy style of this popular concellen. Emma Cotrelly, juggler, made a strong half for public favor, and won full recognition for her work. Clark and Williams, two very elever black face comedians, became immediate favorites. They were pleasing first as the colored nurse glils, and then as swell colored coachmen, their bright repartee and elever dancing winning for them new admirers. Max Muller, German comedian, made friends from his first appearance, and with his wittlesuns kept his avidence in such a happy mood that they were toath to have him desist. Koppe, club juggler, proved himself to be among the first in his class and won appianse. The fantzer Brothers, head and hand balancers, although not on the bill, appeared and won unstitud approval for their exceptionally elever work, other features on the bill, were: The Cee Mees, aerialists; Saville and Stuart, comedy duo; Lillian Abrains, in songs; Haynes and Redmond, in a sketch; Laura Wyhe, vocalist; Jola Pomeroy, serio conic, and the Angstron Sisters, in songs and dances.

KOSTER & BIAL'S ROOF GARDEN. - The roof here was well filled on Monday evening, July 20, when an interesting programme was recled off. Umbrel las were in use occasionally, but the atmosphere was delightfully cool, and the elevated auditorium was the Mecca of many who sought escape from the clutches of Old Humidity. The programme introduced several members new to this house, and the old favorites, a number of which hold over, were well received. Of these Joe Flynn, with his telling parodies on timely topics and popular songs, repeated his usual hit, and had to appear again and again. Josephine Sabel, character songs, also ned with a hearty reception and gave general satisfaction. The Rogers Brothers' Dutch impersonation tickled the risibilities of every one present. Catherine Bartho made her first appearance here in a number of character toe dances, and proved to be gracefully artistic. Bonnie Lottie was another successful candidate for approval, her singing and dancing being pleasing. Lillian Green, in her impersonations, also was successful. The Manhattan Comedy Four, Jules Levy, with his cornet solos; the Tio Bearnais and Edison's vitascope completed the programme. For next week an entire change of bill is announced. troduced several members new to this house, and KRITH'S UNION SQUARE THEATRE.—Strong in all particulars, the bill for the week beginning Monday, July 20, gives no evidence of indsummer apathy in the booking department of this popular continuous performance house, the list embracing some of the best acts in the vaudevilles. Melniyre and Heath, past masters in mirth provoking, stand out in bold relief in spite of the excellence of their associates, the amount of laughter attendant on their ascension in "The World's Bailoon," after a period of hilarity almost unbounded, stamping their act a hit of the most pronounced sort. Ward and Curren, "The Two Clippers," maintained their reputation for sweet singing and comedy of a real homorous sort, and as a consequent result registered a solid success. Maybell Eckert and Lodwick Heek, duettists of more than common ability, were eminently successful; Wing Massaud and Capitola Forrest, in an act which is out of the ordinary, proved to be strong favorities, and Wills and Halpin introduced their novel act, replete with good dancing, to an appreciative audience. Bessie Varse and Grace Vaughn, duettists, were among the newcomers, but their ability soon won them attention, and when they had finished there was no doubting their success. Ceell Spooner, who as a rural star has succeeded, proved herself an agile dancer; the Darling Sisters, in changes and song; George F. Hall, a minner, Mile, Olive, a graceful juggler, trim of figure and with a pleasing face; J. C. Weston, club swinger; the Murray Brothers, instrumentalists, and B. P. Vernon, a graud opera bartione, were all accorded applause in keeping with their entertaining qualities. The cinematograph is retained, and was as effective as usual in convincing the beholders of its results that it is certainly a wonderful invention, creating a vast amount of enthusiasam. The attendance was exceedingly good, nearly all of the seats being filled, in spite of the humidity which held in check the show going public.

of undeniable excellence is the one presented by Manager Hammerstein for the present week, and the reception given each performer by the overflowing audience gathered here on July 20 was as hearty and sincere as it was well deserved. Fregoli still continues in undiminished favor, and contrives to hold the attention of his auditors throughout his long and difficult. "El Dorado." The La Moyne Bros. Teats on the horizontal bars proved worthy of attention, and received their merited share of recognition, and Rachel Walker. Creoie vocalist, made a favorable impression, and was deservedly rewarded, while May Howard brought forward her usual well selected budget of sweet and popular songs, and proved as sprightly and generally capable as of yore. Chas. B. Ward's greeting was a warm one, and the Grand Opera Quartet gave their well rendered selections to appreciative hearers. Fred Lesile's dogs received the usual share of attention, and Mamie Sheppard filled in her altoted time most agreeably. Mons. Dewell, gymnast, cleverly executed difficult feats in praiseworthy style, while the Turce Marvelles were vigorously applauded for their commendable work. A notable extra number was found in Wm. G. Muller, whose sweet and well trained soprano voice was heard to excellent advantage, and whose debut in the vandevilles, which was made on that occasion, was a most encurraging one.

American Roof Garden, The following people make up the current bill: Zelma Rawlaton, Hope Booth, Louise Auber, Ehret and West, Jennie Yeamans, Nick Adams, Leonard Fietcher and Grace Russell, Liska, Dick Gorman, Thos. J. Ryan, Mile. Alma and Lily Wren.

MANHATTAN BEACH .- There were large crowds at this resort all last week, and the several amusements came in for a large share of the patronage at the daily and nightly performances. "Evangeline" continues its popularity with the public. Its excellent company and elaborate mount ings have won hearty approval. The popular-ity of the Sousa concerts also continues. With his excellent concert band he plays two full programmes every day, before large and enthusiastic audiences. New features have been added to Rice's Carnival Circus, which keep up the interest in this excellent entertainment. A new feature of the Pain pyrotechnic display this week is the performance of Ella and Lulu Zuila, who are introduced to the public under the title of "Queens of the Aerial Cable." The fortunes of "Cuba" are suspended long enough to allow the Misses Zuila to give a con siderable exhibition of their skill in walking and other feats, including the riding of a bicycle on a tight rope.

BRIGHTON BRACH.-The Seldl concerts are the chief attraction here, and the programmes are varied as well as excellent. There will be a large number of special features introduced in the programmes this week. Special care has been given in the selections, and the lovers of good music will

The attendance on the second day of the meeting of the Queens County Jockey Club, at Aqueduct, L. A change for the better in the weather conditions prevalled on Friday afternoon, 17, and there was an increase in the number visiting the course. The programme was more promising, too, than usual, while as a rule the racing was better, albeit there were one or two rather surptising reversals of form observable. One of these was furnished by the running of Voiley, in the lifth race, in which, ridden by Doggett, the gelding, which had made such a miserable showing two days previously, won in a gallop, the favorite, The Native, not getting a place. The stewards of the meeting were not slow in taking action in this case, it being announced after the race that entries from W. C. Daly's stable would not be received in the future: meanwhile the facts will doubtless be submitted to the Jockey Club for final action. So far as results were concerfied, it was a stand off between the bettors and the layers of odds, three favorites winning and an equal number disappointing their supporters. Jockey Simms met with an accident in the second race which came near ending fatally. He had the mount on the favorite, Marshall, which stumbled at the start, throwing Simms over his head, and the horse striking him a glancing blow on the head as he passed over him. Simms was carried off the track in an unconsclous condition, but recovered soon afterwards, and came to the city by train after the races. He was quite baddy bruised about the head and neck, but escaped serious injuries. Summary:

The Flyers at Milwaukee.

That the good people of Milwaukee, Wis., do not devote all their leisure time to sampling the pro-duct of the celebrated breweries within the limits of the city is daily demonstrated by the crowds that make their way to the race track, to enjoy the sport provided by the managers of the meeting that has been progressing there for a fortnight or so, and which has so far given the best of satisfaction.

The Roby Racing Law Stands.

The State Supreme Court at Indianapolis, Ind., July 17, upheld the Roby racing law of 1895, and struck a severe blow at racing in that Indiana sub-urb of Chicago. The case came up on appeal from the Lake County Circuit Court, which refused to the Lake County Circuit Court, which refused to grant an injunction to prevent racing at the Sheffield, Forsyth and Roby tracks, so long as the law, which provides that racing shall not be held more than fifteen consecutive days at any one track, was not violated. The Supreme Court holds that the three tracks are owned by one corporation, and that the Sheffield and Forsyth tracks were constructed for the one purpose of evading the law by racing fifteen days on each, thus making the attractions continuous. The Lakeside Jockey Club's Second meeting of the present season was con-tinued last week at the track at Roby, Ind., and the reports received represent the financial returns as altogether satisfactory to the management while the sport has met with the approval of the racegoers. The races decided during the week resuited as follow:

Latonia Jockey Club Meeting.
The meeting at Latonia, Ky., continued during the past week, with a good attendance each day, good sport and generally satisfactory returns, the conjectness of the judgment of the speculative fra-iteraky being demonstrated by the number of favor-ities that passed the wire in advance of their fields. The events decided since our last report are herewith summarised:

Racing at St. Louis.

The St. Louis (Mo.) Fair Grounds' Association is meeting with deserved success, the meeting now in progress being liberally supported by the denizens of the Mound City, long noted for their love of sport of all kinds, and who seem to be particularly well pleased with the bill of fare daily set before them by the managers of the fixture. The entries for the different events are usually large and of good quality, the jockeys are skillful, the races true, and the sport to the liking of those who wager their coin on the results. Summary of events run off during the past week:

J. E. Barr, owner and driver of the mare Dalsy, six years, on July 4 undertook, for a wager of $1,250 a side, to drive her from the White Horse Cellars, Piccadilly, London, to the Old Ship, Brighton, in five hours. The roads were in poor condition, owing to rain the preceding night, but the mare succeeded in trotting the distance with ten minutes to spare. It is stated that the fastest time the distance between London and Brighton has been trotted is 4h. 30s., accomplished two years ago by a 13.1 hands Russian from Hyde Park Corner to the Old Ship.

Tycho Brahe, a bay gelding owned by the Heinemann Bros., of the Central Park Riding Academy, this city, is stated to have cleared a height of 7ft. 6½ in, in a leap over bars at said place July 18. Each jump is said to have been carefully measured by a committee composed of Fred Ashenden, W. A. McGibbon, Frank Elliott and Thos. Ryan. If the jumping was done under fair conditions the figures now constitute a new record, the best previous record being 7ft. 3½ in, by Flemaker, ridden by Mmc. Marantette, at Chicago, Ili., over bars.

THE RING.

GEORGE, ALIAS "KID" LAVIONE, made his first public appearance after his return from England at Madison Square Garden, this city, on Monday evening, July 20, in a six round settle with Charley McKeever, the clever Phitadelphia boxer. The desire to see Lavigne perform was the chief reason for the attendance of nearly three thousand spectators on so hot a night, and perhaps they were saits feed with what they saw, although the men gave only a scientific bout, under police surveillance, the authorities interdicting anything in the way of real boxing, which caused the display to be very tame, in the estimation of the majority present. Of course the exhibition was not such as to enable any one to form a judgment as to the relative abilities of the principals. Several other settos took place of the principals. Several other settes took place between fighters of lesser note.

Things Picked Up Round.

We see that the Manhattan C. C. is to send Mr. Lipschetz to Rochester for "that cup." Well, all we have to say is that, if any other club now means to win this trophy it has just got to "hump itself" to the top of its bent; if the M. C. C. gets it now for the third time it will have a commanding lead for the final possession of The Staatz Zeitung's cup. It is reported that Mr. Burille has said he is not available as Brocklyn's representative. It was a Rochester. ... Bro. Gulbreath, of The Stage Y, does not take any stock in the recently ventilated Burille-Pillabury joke, and rather thinks we were midly "taken in." Of practical telegraphy we know nothing, so cannot reason on the possibility or impossibility of the performance; but the story came so straight to us through such a reliable channel that we could not disbelieve it. so gave the loke currency only as you move "A little monsense now and then," etc. ... A match at matrimony was recently brought to a conclusion between our old friend, A. B. Hodges, the honored secretary of the N. Y. S. C. A., and Miss Robinson, of New Brighton. The final act of the tragedy—no, game of the match was a brilliant Bishop's Gambit, and both players woo, as is the property of the control of the property of the control of the property of the new and honorable trans. R. McCall has the sympathy of the players wherever checkers are known. He recently lost a son twenty-six years of age. ... And yet another. We learn with regret that "Bootle," the eminent draughts critic is dead. Fisher E. Bonstead devoted a great deal of his leisure time to the collection of a draughts library, which is famous. It is the most complete extant, and contains everything published on the game in book, pamphlet or magazine form, besides many newspaper columns from the first issue... One of the finest illustrations of the expanded ideas of one's own standing in the checker ranks was fully shown in the recent Grover-Lawson match. Cleveland vs. New York. Superior batting helped the Clevelands to defeat the New Yorks on July 14, at Cleveland, O. Young, for the home team, pitched magnificently, allowing the visitors only six safe hits and in eight out of the nine innings preventing them from scoring. Their only run was made in the seventh inning, on a single by Gieason and a double bagger by Davis. Clark was hit safely at the right time. Both teams fielded in a faultless manner, but the New Yorks were very weak at the bat. The other long safe hits beside the one already mentioned were double baggers by McKean and Tebeau. Connaughton made several pretty stops and throws to first base, he accepting all of eight chances at short stop. Manager Irwin, of the New York team, protested the game on account of Captain Tebeau's playing. McAleer and Van Haltren led their respective teams to butting. for the home team, pitched magnificently, allowing Lewis did fairly well, but was hit safely at the right time. Then, too, he was unfortunate in giving bases on balls. He gave five men their base on balls, and four of them afterwards scored. A shift was made in the Boston team; Long had gone home to Chicago on account of the death of his brother, and Bannon was shifted to short stop, and Stivetts was sent to right field. While Bannon did fairly good work, the team was seriously handicapped by the absence of Long. The long safe hits were triple baggers by Donovan and Hawley, and a two baser by Tucker.

Hill started in to pitch for the home club, but was hit hard; besides this, his support was wretched. Cunningham succeeded him, but he could not stop the champions from gettling runs, aithough his work in the pitcher's position would have been effective with perfect support. Koster, a new man, replaced Cunningham, and did very well in the last two innings. The long safe hits were a nome run by Kelley and double baggers by Keeler and Kelster.

The home team took the lead in the second inning and held it until the seventh, when the visitors forged ahead by one run. In the last half of the eighth the home team tied it, only to be beaten in the ninth. Both pitchers were freely batted throughout. Delehanty's batting was a feature. His three safe hits included a triple and two double baggers, sending in four runs, besides the two he had made himself. The other long safe hits were two triple baggers by Clements and one each by Dahlen and Anson, and doubles by Hulen, Everitt, Pfeffer and Griffith.

Cleveland vs. Boston.

The Clevelands had apparently little trouble in defeating the Bostons on July 16, at Cleveland, O. Manager Selee, of the visiting team, was served with papers restraining him from interfering with Captain Tebeau, of the home team, and he announced that the Boston Club would not protest any of the games in which Tebeau takes part. His decision prevented the legal discussion that has become one of the preliminaries to all the games of late played at Cleveland. Both teams played good ball, and for six innings the score was close. In the seventh, however, the locals struck a batting streak and scored five runs before the side was put out, and this virtually settled the game in their favor. The long safe hits were triple baggers by McKean and McGarr and doubles by Hamilton and Tucker.

The St. Joseph and Dubuque teams met at St. Joseph July 15, when the home team won in a brillant and perfect fielding game by a score of 1 to 0. The visitors secured only two hits off Johnston, while bolon held the home team down to four hits. These teams met again 16, when the tables were turned and the visitors won by a score of 1 to 0. The game was hard fought throughout, and the only run was made in the last half of the ninth inning, with two men out, on Klop's long drive to left field. Hunsecker, of the home feam, and Smith, of the visitors, each held their opponents down to five hits. The sharp fielding of both teams was also a feature.

A special meeting of the Western Association was held on July 17, 18, at Cedar Rapids, 18. All the clubs were represented. St. Joseph was dropped on account of geographical location, and the season is to be continued with six clubs, St. Joseph retaining its franchise. Des Moines was awarded the pennant for the first season. The second season begins on July 21, when the new schedule of championship games goes into effect.

The Haverford College Team's Tour. The eighth game of the Haverford College team's our was played July 15, at Uppingham, Eng., the Uppingham School eleven then winning by 347 for ix wickets to 131, the totals of the first inning. The ome team batted first, T. L. Taylor making 106, C. E. Wilson 92, and H. R. Parkes 61, and the inning was declared closed at the fall of the sixth wicket. The visitors were tired by their long outing, and in-The visitors were tired by their long outing, and intended to play for a draw, as there was not sumiclent time left in which to get the runs. J. A. Lester, with 53, and D. H. Adams, with 21, made a long stand before the second wicket fell to Wilson, but the other batsmen were quickly disposed of of his bowling, four being caught by Barker at short slip, and the inning terminated for 131. A two days match was scheduled July id and 17, at Repton, but rain permitted of only a little play on the former date. The home team won the toss, and made a total of 123, of which J. Dumbell was the chief contributor with 37. The visitors started poorly, D. H. Adams being retired for the first time without scoring double figures, but J. A. Lester again distinguished himself, making vi by a splendid exhibition of hard hitting. C. R. Hinchman and J. H. Scattergood batted well for their respective scores of 46 and 51, and the inning ended with a total of

281. This left the home eleven 168 to get to save a single inning defeat, but they falled to get more than 131, D. H. Adams bo wiling no fewer than eight wickets at a small cost. The Haverford College team thus won by an inning and 27 runs. A decisive defeat was sustained by the Haverford College eleven July 18, when they met the Harrow School team on the latter's ground. The visitors won the toss, but were soon retired for the meagre total of 81, J. A. Lester, with 28, and C. H. Howson, with 26, alone making any stand. The Harrow School eleven made a total of 230, with four wickets down, and then declared their inning closed. A. Robertson and F. Studd, who were both not out, batted in fine form for their respective scores of 79 and 40, and 8.1. Maw made 58. The visitors made a poor exhibition of batting in their second inning, being all disposed of for the very small total of 33. J. A. Lester, who went in second, carried his bat out for 12, and was the highest scorer. In the ten games played up to date J. A. Lester has scored 767 runs, his highest inning being 135, not out, 105, 96, 91, 91, 64 and 53, while his lowest is 11.

The English Champions.

The winners of the recent annual amateur athletic competitions for the championship of England, held at Northampton on July 4, were as shown in the summary below. It may be here remarked that the sport was spoiled by a very strong breeze, which, while materially assisting the sprinters, was against good performances in the other events, both on the path and in the field. The Sporting Life, adverting to this fact, says: "There is not the least hope that Shaw's 13%s. for the high hurdle race will ever Shaw's 133,8. Iter is not the least hope that Shaw's 133,8. for the high hurdle race will ever come before the committee of the A. A. A. for adoption as a record. That a walkover should be accomplished by such men as Allfrey and Moyles in 163,8. goes far enough to prove what assistance the runners derived."

The Metropolitan Championships

The championship meeting of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., which will be held on the grounds of the New Jersey A. C on Saturday, Aug. 1, is attracting more than usual attention, and for once the local meeting will have a large entry list, while the competitions promise to be close and excit ing, as several athletes who could win are ineligi ling, as several atmetes who could will are ineign-ble to compete. The New West Side Athletic Club, which has been doing some very good work in amateur sport under the leadership of President Gunderman, has ferwarded the following entries to Chairman John J. Dixon: Peter J. Corley, 220yds. Chairman John J. Dixon: Peter J. Corley, 2239ds. hurdle trace and 449ds. run; Edward Zhin, 1009ds. run; John Herty, putting 16th shot; Patrick Mackay, three miles run; Edward Stoll, putting 16th shot and throwing 56th weight; Michael Regan, three miles run; John Layer, three miles waik; Thomas Nixon, running high jump. The final event on the programme will be a champton-ship game of baseball between teams from the New Jersey A. C. and the Staten Island Cricket Club. Entries close with Jas. E. Sullivan, 241 Broadway, New York, July 25. York, July 25.

TOMMY CONNEFF has decided to make a match with F. E. Bacon, the English champion, provided suitable terms can be mutually agreed upon. Conneif says that he is willing to run Bacon for the one mile championship of the world at any place in Great Britian after Sept. I, but the stake must be raised to $1,000 a side, or to $5,000 a side if agreeable to the Englishman. He will not make a match to run ten miles, but will meet Bacon at shorter distances, to be agreed upon after Conneif's arrival in England.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS, of this city, have just issued part sixth of their series of shooting pictures by that eminent artist in this line, A. B. Frost. The subjects of the latest number are Autumn Woodcock and Quair Shooting, and they are treated of by the artist with the hand of a master, familiar with the scenes he so trily depicts. The accompanying letter press graphically describes the sport in brezy style, and, besides being very interesting to lovers of dog and gun, contains hints that will prove useful to veteran sportsmen as well as those whose knowledge of woodland pastimes is yet limited. No sportsmen's library is complete without a set of these shooting pictures.

The New York Newsdealers and Stationers' Protective and Benevoient Association will hold their annual Summer night festival at Lion Park, Columbus Avenne, on Thursday evening, Aug. 13. The music will be furnished by Prof. Ward's full orchestra, and the affair will doubtless be equally as successful as those of former years.

Yachting in Foreign Waters.

The German Emperor's new cutter Meteor, the Prince of Wales' Britannia, A. B. Walker's Alisa and C. D. Rose's Satanita started in a race, July 15, and C. D. Rose's Satanita started in a race, July 15, under the auspices of the Campbeltown Yacht Club. There was a steady, wholesall breeze, and all the yachts carried Jibheaded topsalls. The progress of the yachts over the course was mostly made by reaching, and the contest was a grand one throughout. The Meteof finished at 2.55:50, the Satanita at 2.56:41, the Britannia at 2.68:52, and the Alisa at 3.11:50. The Britannia won the race on time allowance. The race for twenty raters was won by the Niagara, which finished at 2.46:52. The Saint finished at 2.48:41.

ance. The race for twenty raters was won by the Nagara, which finished at 2.48:44.

The Royal Ulster Yacht Club regatta took place off Bangor, Ire., on 17. The event in which the greatest interest centred was the race for yachts over twenty rating, for which all the crack British boats and Emperor Whilam's cutter. Meteor, were en'ered. There was gearcely any wind, however, and the race degenerated into a drifting match, in which the German boat again showed her phenomenal qualities as a light weather salier. The Meteor was the first to cross the starting line, and at once began to draw away in the light air. She continued to hold her advantage, and finally the breeze died away altogether, leaving a dat calin, which caused the Caress, Satanits, Alisa and Britannia to give up the race. The Meteor drifted home on the second fround, when the race was stopped because of the absence of wind. The cup and money prize, however, were awarded to the German cutter. The Saint and Niagara were among the starters in a race for twenty raisers. The former won, with the American boat second.

Saturday, Is, was the second day of the Royal Ulster Club regatta, and the big cutters sailed over the same course as before, the first prize being the Rear Commodore's Cup, value $250, with $125 added, open to alt yachts over 20 rating. The wind was variable, at times dropping away to a calin. The race was uninteresting, save for the fact that the Meteor was defeated. The Alisa crossed the finishing line fory minutes ahead of the German boat. The Saint and Caress gave up on account of the absence of wind. In the race for the 20 raters the Niagara fouled The Saint and Cares gave up on account of the absence of wind. In the race for the 20 raters the Niagara fouled The Saint and the start and then withdrew. The Saint sailed over the course alone and took the prize.

Yacht Sailing Off Newport.

The second race of the series between the 30-footers at Newport, R. I., took place on July 15, the Vaquero III, Esperanza and Asahi being the contestants, and the former, cleverly handled by her owner, H. B. Duryes, proving the winner by 2m. 47s. The Asahi, winner of the previous race, was on this occasion sailed by her owner, Hayard Thayer, and finished second. The elapsed time of the boats was: Asquero, HI, 4h. 5m. 30s.; Asv.bl., 2h. 23s.; Esperanza, 2h. 45s. The distance was sixteen miles. The third race came of 17, and was won by the Asahi, sailed by Nat Watson, the Esperanza second and Vaquero III third. Elapsed time: Asahi, 2h. 30m. 55s.; Esperanza, 2h. 3sm. 10s.; Vaquero III, 2h. 41m. 30s. The little fellows met again on 1s, when the southeast wind was too light for good work, and the race was consequently less interesting than the others. The old sixteen mile course, from Brenton's Cove to Dyer's Island buoy and return, was sailed, and Esperanza, which was second in each of the previous races, won, having showed the way from the start, the Vaquero II finishing second, Asahi third, and Hera last. Winner's time, 2h. 34m. 18s.

The victory of Vaquero III over the hitherto generally thumphant Asahi was the feature of the race 2s. The sixteen mile course was covered by all of the five starters, the race resulting as given in the following summary. estants, and the former, cleverly handled by her

LARCHMONT'S MONSTER FLEET.

At Last the Colonia Obtains a Victory Over the Emerald.

For the first time during the present season the Larebmont Yacht Club was favored with clear, bright weather, with an abundance of wind, on Saturday, July 1s, when the club's carnival of sports opened with a regatta in which over forty yachts started in fourteen classes. The members and their guests, included among whom were many handsomely dressed young ladles, were overjoyed at the decided included among whom were many hand-somely dressed young ladies, were overjoyed at the decided change for the better in the meteorological condiditions, and the prospect of fine sport, in which expectation they were not disappointed, for the regatia was one of the best the club has ever sailed. The big fleet of contesting boats presented a beautiful spectacle, but the number of starters made the work of the officials in following their movements, and keeping track of the leaders in the different classes, a difficult matter. Gathered at the starting point were a vast number of steam and sailing yachts, with the club steamboar, all laden with appreciative spectators. The main interest centred in the contest between the class it schooners, Colonia and Emeraid, the latter making the best starf, although not going over the line quite as soon after gun fire as her tival.

The courses were as follow: Schooners—Six miles east three-fourths north, thence six miles southwest five-eighths west, and northwest three miles to the linish, fifteen miles, sailed over twice, or a total of thirty miles. The kamona and Atlantic, however, only made one circuit of the triangle, Classes 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and special thirty-footers went over a smaller triangle. First, four miles east, thence four miles southwest and half raters, sailed over 6% our miles, 1, 16, 16 and 17, which included the cabin and open cats and half raters, sailed over 6% miles, then southwest two miles, and then forth morthwest 1, mites to the finish, twice around, or a total of eleven miles, than and a case of the last a four and a case of the last a four and a case of the last a forthwest two miles, and then forthwest 1, mites to the finish, twice around, or a total of eleven miles.

While the wind was east northeast it made a beat, a run and a reach. After the wind hauled to the southwest it was a run, a close reach and a run for all classes. In nearly all the classes the racing throughout was close, and the amateur satiors on board were on their metrie. The Emerald showed the way to the Colonia over half the distance, but then the latter assumed command, and, in addition to making up the time allowance, she won by nearly two minutes. Her owner, Vice commodore C. E. Postley, was heartify congratulated on the success of his boat, thus making up for previous defeats by the Emerald during the season. Summary:

Sailing in Gravesend Bay. One of the most successful regattas ever held by the Gravesend Bay Yacht Club-was that sailed on the Gravesend Bay Yacht Club was that salied on Saturday, July 18, it being the third annual regatts of the organization. There were eighteen starters out of thirty seven entries, which were divided into five classes, saling over the following courses: No. 1, for Classes A, B and half raters, which was off the club house, to and around a stakeboat off the Government dock at Fort Hamilton, thence to and around a stakeboat off Coney Island Peint and back to starting point, a distance of cight miles; course No. 2, which was for classes D and E, to and around buoy No. 11, thence to and around the red bell buoy off the Swash Channel and return, a distance of eleven miles. The 20 and 35ft. Classes took course No. 3, which was from the club house to and around buoy No. 11, thence to and around Southwest Spit and return to starting line, a distance of sixteen miles. The weather was clear and pleasant, with a good breeze from southward, which aforded all the motive power needed to keep the boats cutting through the waters in a lively fashion. Summary:

HALF RATER CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Glencairn Carries the Seawanha

ka Cup to Canada, Winning Three Straight Races. The second race of the series between the Glencairn, championing the cause of the Dominion, and the St Heirie, upon which the hopes of the members of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club and their sympathizers were centred, for the elegant cup emblematic of the international half rater championship, was sailed on the waters of Long island Sound, off Oyster Bay, L. i., on Tuesday, July 14, and, like that of the preceding day, the struggle resulted in the victory of the Canadian least although the defeat administered was not so boat, although the defeat administered was not so decided as the previous beating—a fact, however, which furnished but slight consolation to the backers of the Yankee craft. The race was a much better one to look at than the first, for the reason that, although the stranger was the leader always. the cup defender made the better time on three of the six legs forming the triangular course, and for the six legs forming the final round of the course it looked like anybody's race. The race furnished a better test, too, for there was a good breeze on Tuesday, and the El Hefrie did better work than before; so much better, in fact, that many experienced yachtsmen were impressed with the belief that in a stiff wind she would prove superior to her consequent.

enced yachtsmen were impressed with the bellet that in a stiff wind she would prove superior to her opponent.

The start was again made from the Centre Island channel buoy, the course being triangular, two miles to a leg, sailed over twice to make the twelve miles. The wind was west by north, blowing quite steadily. The signal to start was given at 12.35, the Glencairn crossing the imaginary line seven seconds in advance of the rival craft. Glencairn luffed around the mark at 1.07.51, 5m, 9s, shead of her rival, and after standing on the port tack for about two minutes caine about, making a hitch to startboard, while Skipper Crane kept El Heirle on the hort tack. Captain Duggan was eventually forced to start sheets, having overstood the mark, while bit Heirle made the leg on the one tack quite handly, gaining 2m, 33s. The times of rounding were: Glencairn, 1.36.42; El Heirle, 1.38-48. To the home mark was a close reach on the starboard tack. The tiny racers fought it out inch by inch and foot by foot. Which was desing the better work it was impossible to tell-unit the round was furshed by Glencairn, at 2.19.48, and by El Heirle at 2.22.16, when it was seen that the American boat had gained eight was seen that the American boat had gained eight was seen that the American boat had gained eight was seen that the American boat had gained eight was seen that the American boat had safed eight was seen that the American boat had safed eight was seen that the American boat had safed eight was seen that the American boat had gained eight seconds on the leg. The times for the whole round were: Glencairn, 1.44:48; El Heirle, 1.47:16.

The Canadian turned the buoy on the starboard tack, setting her spinnaker to port. Two minutes after teiencairin gibed and shifted her spinna the saffer teiencairin gibed and shifted her spinna trane showed good judgment by gibing around the budy and setting her spinnaker to port. Two minutes after toleneain gloed and shifted her spinnaker. El Heirie seemed to get a little the better of the wind, and, despite the fact that she was badly beaten on the first run, on this leg she gained eleven seconds on her competitor. Both boats were forced to gibe just before reaching the mark, which they gibed around. To the next mark was another close reach. Near the end of the leg the Canadian was footing a little faster than El Heirie, which turned the mark just two minutes and a half behind her rival. Captain Duggan held on to the port tack until El Heirie rounded, when both boats came about together and stood for the finish line. Nearing the end of the face the wisdom of Gleneatra's short hitch to port at the legitining of the homeward reach was shown, for without making another tack she skipped across the line at 3 53:16, a winner by 6m, 22s. The third race came off on Wednesday, 15, in a good reefing breeze, and was by all odds the best of the series, and it proved conclusively that the Canadian boat is better at all points of sailing, and in all sorts of weather, than her opponent. It had been thought that in a good blow the American craft would be found to more than hold her speedy rival, but that belief was dissipated in the final struggle, as the Glencairn demonstrated that she was quite as good in strong as in light winds, she winning the deciding race by almost as great a distance as on the preceding day. The course was east by north, three miles to leeward and return, sailed over twice.

The starting signal was given at 12.35, when Glencairn god away thirteen seconds after the whistle and thirty-one seconds alhead of El Heite Captain Duggan set his spinnaker to starboard, but Captain Unggan set his spinnaker to starboard, but Captain trane showed better judgment in setting his to port, and El Heirle began at once to overhaul the leader. At 12.50 she passed Glencairn, amid the sirieking of whistles from the accompanying deet of steam and naptha yachts, and the American boat was leading for the first time in the series of races. Both boats stood in on the starboard tack, and just here the race was won and lost. Glencairn crept up on El Heirle's weather quarter, and finally passed her race was won and lost. THE SONG LEADER—THE STAR CREATOR—THE SALARY RAISER—THE ENCORE WINNER,

Sweet Little Rosey-Posey"

Words and music by HARRY DACRE, author of "Daisy Bell," "This is a Chorus Song," "Playmates," etc.

MAY HOWARD opened at Hammerstein's Olympia Roof Garden, New York City, for one week, and the feature of her specialty was the song, "SWEET LITTLE ROSEY-POSEY." She is now on her fifth week, and so great is the success of this splendid artiste and song that on several occasions the audience demanded encores after the lights had been lowered and the curtain dropped for the intermission.

CORA ROUTT (the Kentucky thoroughbred) has been singing "SWEET LITTLE ROSEY-POSEY" at the Madison Square Roof Garden, New York City, since the Summer season began, and her success was so pronounced that one of New York's leading dailies gave this clever little artiste and her song a three column notice.

O'BRIEN AND WRIGHT, one of the most popular male feams in America, say they never before had so good a song. Among others who are featuring the song are: LYDIA YEAMANS-TITUS, HARRY LEIGHTON, MAE LOWERY, HOWARD POWERS, VERSATILE TRIO, HILDA THOMAS, SHAYNE AND WORDEN, FLORENCE FRENCH, HOWARD AND ST. CLAIR, HARRY SHELDON, BESSIE SEARLES, BONNIE GOODWIN, EMMA CARNS, HOBBY BURNS, HARRY ROSSITER, DIETZ AND DON, Etc.

Recognized professionals can obtain this gratifying bit, with orchestra, by conding card or regrammes and two cent stamp for portage.

SELECTED REPERTORY OF PLAYS.

MISS CROWELL is the only star in repertory who has achieved a metropolitan reputation, playing principal roles in high priced attractions in all the large cities. During her engagement with Callahan's big production of "Coon Hollow," Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York Cily, Alan Dale, the eminent dramatic critic, wrote in THE NEW YORK WORLD, Aug. 30, 1894: "Miss Floy Crowell, whom I have never seen before, plays the adventuress in a way that is worthy of the Lyceum or Daly's. She is artistic, finished and worth studying."

MISS CROWELL is to go out this season under most propitions circumstances, as the other paper, now in the press of the A. S. Seer Co., of New York, will place her in a position only most of the high, priced attractions.
